Alpina Fall Winter Collection 16/17

ALPINA: Finely crafted style and comfort for every day.

Alpina Allday footwear [for fall/winter 16/17] is a comprehensive collection that builds on traditional craftsmanship and expertise to produce footwear that is as comfortable as it is stylish, as functional as it is fashionable.

For a start, Alpina is a specialist in leather, working exclusively in the footwear business for more than 70 years.

All Alpina shoes are crafted exclusively from soft, durable quality leather. Most of this year's women's shoes and ankle boots are a rich black, some with shiny or glossy patent leather finishes and combined with various attractive textures. And this season colours like greys and browns mixing compelling patterns and textures figure fashionably in the larger mix.

The season's women's collection covers an array of styles, with elegant, high-heeled pumps and equally elegant high-heeled ankle boots. Then there are attractive evening and business styles that mix business and pleasure tastefully, beautifully. These are shoes you can wear all day, confidently, in full comfort, all the while looking fabulously fit for the occasion – any occasion. Casual shoes and ankle boots – even elegant ballerinas – all meant for good looking everyday wear, anywhere, round out the best of the season's fine and flexible collection.

Some of the season's styles also employ a unique Alpitex membrane, to keep feet dry and warmer in messy winter weather. Natural materials like quality leather and warm wool linings make Alpina shoes breathable and soft to the touch. In addition, smartly-designed sole profiles from carefully chosen materials ensure a stable, safe walk with good grip, even in winter. In the spirit of functional footwear – that's truly made to wear – models are available in half-sizes, as well as wider fits for extra, comfortable volume.

For men, casual means good looking functional footwear, with many models sporting thicker rugged soles for inhospitable winter conditions. They're equally at home in the meeting room and out on the street, in transit or simply going about the day's business. Even a fall/winter sneaker (including a high-cut) sneaks its stylish way into the collection. Black and charcoal leather dominates, in combination with robust rubber and reinforced nylon just where it's needed.

Another Alpina plus: Alpina's entire production is located in Europe for greater flexibility and close control over the entire process – which is reflected in the high, uniform quality of all our footwear all year round.

Put your best foot forward – in an Alpina.

ALPINA: A tradition of craftsmanship and expertise

Alpina knows feet – and footwear. It's been in the sport and outdoor footwear business for more than 70 years (50 of those years in the same location), building on the craftsmanship, experience and expertise that comes with respect for tradition and dedicated specialization.

Anyone who knows about feet and footwear knows a good last is integral – only from a good last can a good shoe be crafted. One that provides support and grip, flex, feel and comfort – to both mimic and maximize the body's natural features and movement. Alpina develops lasts for every type and category of shoe individually, according to the very specific functional requirements of each shoe type and style.
